

The most eloquent of apologists may be able to convince their hearers that God is real, that the Bible is His word, and that Jesus is the only Savior, and yet they still remain unsaved. They will stay in their sins until they repent and trust alone in Jesus.

Our aim, therefore, as those who preach the everlasting gospel, is not to see people intellectually convinced of the gospel but to see people partake in it.

Faith is For Weak People
Ray Comfort

The work that God wants to do supremely in our hearts is to produce Christlikeness. It is a work that will take all of our lives—there are no shortcuts to this kind of spiritual growth. There is no organization, no activity that can substitute for it. We need a constant hunger and thirst for the nature of Christ to be reproduced in us.

Hunger for Reality

George Verwer

The church at this moment needs men who feel themselves expendable in the warfare of the soul. This kind of freedom is necessary if we are going to have prophets in our pulpits again instead of mascots. These free men will serve God and men from motives too high to be understood by the rank and file who today shuffle in and out of the sanctuary.

They will make no decision out of fear, they will take no course out of a desire to please, accept no service for financial consideration.

They will perform no religious act out of mere custom. Nor will they allow themselves to be influenced by the love of publicity, or by the desire for a reputation.

A. W. Tozer
