

I am absolutely convinced that the church of today is not fully experiencing what Jesus died for and not yet becoming what He prayed for. There is something infinitely more and completely other than what we are walking in today. There is a power, a purity, an authority, an anointing, a glory that we have barely touched. There is much preparation, restoration, and reformation still to take place.

Stan Toler

We are on the brink of a tipping point—for the Lord is responding to both the hunger and the action of His people. This hunger will increase, develop, and ultimately usher in great awakening throughout the church and reformation in the world.

I firmly believe that revival is upon us.
