

What does Kingdom work look like?

Internal allegiance
External obedience

PREVIOUSLY intended to be used,
but so far plans have changed

The world and history are not about ideas, but about relationships—the relationship between God and man, man and man. Neither the words nor the ideas of politicians, preachers, priests or academics truly change the world. In the final analysis, the world is changed for the better by the anguish of the self-sacrificing individual and the blood of martyrs. Jesus was the ultimate model.

The biblical message is truth and it demands a commitment to truth. It means the acceptance of Christ as Savior and Lord, and it means living under God's revelation. Here there are morals, values, and meaning, including meaning for people. It is the truth that gives a unity to all of knowledge and all of life. Such Christians do not need to be a majority in order for this influence on society to occur.

How Should We Then Live?

Francis Schaeffer

"But Lord, how can I save Israel? My clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my family." (Judges 6:15)

The Gideon Principle did not change in the twenty-first century. The American Marine Corps slogan that all they want is "a few good men" is similar to the message of the Bible. God wants men and women who are deeply committed to Him, not masses who are shallow. The faithful remnant and the committed individual are the keys in terms of methodology to understanding how God works in human history.

Anyone can do this. Anyone who is willing to trust and obey can change himself—and, by extension, change his world.
